Cheltenham Spa is surrounded by history. Designed for the wealthy and sophisticated, it became a popular place to visit after King George III came to taste the spa waters in 1788. Cheltenham still holds its name for tourism, but is also ranked as one of the best places to live in the UK.

Cheltenham's famous Promenade is a beautiful tree lined street, home to many High Street names, including John Lewis and Cavendish House. Not far is Montpellier, the well known and exclusive shopping area with an array of independent boutiques, cafes and bistros. With its own gardens, Montpellier offers entertainment too with live music from the band stand in the summer.

For the foodies amongst us, Cheltenham offers plenty of fantastic places to eat, and boasts several Michelin starred restaurants such as Le Champignon Sauvage and Lumiere. Cote Brasserie, Brasserie Blanc and The Daffodil are all great food destinations too.

Art lovers will appreciate The Wilson art gallery and museum. Cheltenham is also the home to the Everyman Theatre which has professional productions for all the family. And the town annually hosts both a well-known annual Art and Literature Festival and Jazz Festival which attract famous names from around the world.

For sporting enthusiasts Cheltenham is home to Prestbury Park, one of the most popular race courses in the country, and hosts the famous Gold Cup race. The town's professional football team, Cheltenham Robins, are in League two, while cricket fans can enjoy the annual cricket festival in the College grounds when the top teams come to play.

Cheltenham is a great place to keep active too. The town boasts its' own Lido, a huge variety of sports clubs, and for discovering the great outdoors, Crickley Hill Park is on Ullenwood's doorstep.

For a long time, the town has been known for its educational establishments. Cheltenham Ladies College is known worldwide, while Cheltenham College and Dean Close School offer private education to the highest standards. Alongside this, there are plenty of good and outstanding state schools in the area along with the renowned Nations Star College. Cheltenham also hosts plenty of family focused activities taking place in the town and surrounding countryside.
